The celebrated author Bruce Chatwin ( 1940 - 1989 ) was a nomad whose desire for adventure and enlightenment was made wholly evident by his writing, in such beloved works as In Patagonia and The Songlines. He dared to be obsessive and learned; and was, in life as in art, forever in quest of the exotic and unexpected. He moved at ease within diverse art, literary , and social circles, and traveled widely over some of the far-flung corners of Asia , Africa , South America , and Australia...
